You are making presents of Loft candy to friends and relatives at a distance! You know the congested condition of the mails and express offices at this rush holiday season of the year. You see the postmen carrying great loads of bundles and boxes, but the question is, is your package among them? Delays and disappointments are characteristic of the busy make-ready days before Christmas, and these delays are largely due to postponed buying. Candy going to points at a distance from here should be started on its journey early. By making early selections you have everything in your favor. Stocks and assortments are at their best, and you have sweeping choice in all lines. This cannot be promised you if you delay your buying until the last minute. While the other merchants are sounding the clarion call to Shop early, we wish to give a few loud blasts from our own trumpet, for early Christmas shopping applies to Candy just as it does anything else.
